- Q.4 Read the passage and answer the questions given below: [10]
- Destruction of forests should be avoided at all costs. It results in the loss of natural wealth and ecological disturbances. Some of the rare species of animals have also been lost. Of late the mountain slopes and hilly tracts have been the target of many agencies. The problem, of course is worse than urbanization. While urbanization has a single plateau – transfer of people from villages to cities, creating unmanageable urban concentration, stripping the mountains of trees for different purposes poses many ecological and other kinds of problems. The mountain plants have been a source of inspiration since ancient times. They have been the abodes of Gods and Saints. Mountain lakes are like the eyes of the Mother Earth. The trickling water beneath the rocks changing into brooks and rivers creates a happy sensation in the heart
